

EUROBODEN
ARCHITEKTURKULTUR

PHILOSOPHY | EUROBODEN

Euroboden positions itself through "architectural culture" and, in so doing, sets exemplary standards in the property development industry. This means that the long-term value of the property is not determined solely by the location. We create desirable one-off works of architecture that offer high levels of investment security and exceptional appreciation potential. These superior urban building blocks and additional living space spur on the development of the city environment.

Euroboden is highly valued as a developer and source of creative ideas by internationally renowned architects, such as David Chipperfield, Jürgen Mayer H. and David Adjaye, but it also promotes lesser-known talents, enriching their work in the process.

The project activities are centred on the major German cities with a particular focus on Munich, the company's base. World-wide publications of the outstanding architectural achievements as well as numerous accolades testify to the long-term strategy of the medium-sized enterprise, which has successfully implemented projects worth a total of around 300 million euros since its founding in 1999.
